

Decrease in student strive in U.S. classrooms

In the efforts to achieve a higher level of education, students work attempt to juggle both an academic live as well as many aspects presented to them while on their journey. With a decrease in college enrollments in 2019 from recent high school graduates, it seems to showcase a decrease within the minority communities. Taking a look at the performance on the percentage of college graduates that graduate with a Bachelors, there is a trend with a low percentage within most minorities.

College enrollment trends from high school graduates

Graduation rates for years to complete bachelor's degree

Top obstacles that cause students to drop out of college

